It has always been the ambition of parents to equip their children for a successful life in a democratic society. Throughout the years, education has been looked upon as the essential factor in bringing this desire to the point of reality. The American people are "education conscious." They have come to realize that knowledge gives an edge to the person who possesses it and that the educated person invariably enjoys an advantage over the educationally handicapped individual.

The long years that have passed since public education had its beginnings in this nation, have witnessed a constant attempt to improve the educational opportunities and advantages for our boys and girls. Our viewpoint, as parents, as to what constitutes a proper education has undergone considerable change with the passing years. Time was when a complete education meant merely the mastery of the three R's. This is today important, but no longer regarded as the end of education; it is but a means to the end which contemplates the complete development of each individual. All education is very largely a matter of experience and experience to be worthwhile must be useful. This point of view leads us to two conclusions. The first—that educational experiences are by no means limited to the school building. The home, the school, the church, social agencies, the theatre, the radio, and recreational centers all provide experiences for children. The second conclusion is simply that one's education does not end with the attainment of a certain age. Education is necessarily a continuous process. Society must see to it that educational opportunity is extended to all as long as they wish to learn.

It is the intent of the Board of Education and the administration of the Garfield Heights Schools to see that the boys and girls of this community are provided with the best possible educational opportunity. Not all individuals make the most of the opportunity provided but that in no way lessens the responsibility of the Board. Experience has demonstrated that in the long run the kind of education a community has is the kind of education the community wants—that good and no better. The desires and aspirations of the community must find expression and satisfaction in the functioning of the Board of Education selected for the express purpose of effectuating community policies and ideals. It is our desire to serve you and the interests of your children in the best possible way.

By: JOHN W. ORPIN,
President—Board of Education.

Administration

Oh, hello! I have been examining the 1948 Pioneer. It is very attractive, with a snow-white cover, reminiscent of the snow and ice, sliding and skating which we enjoyed while the book was being produced. More interesting than the cover, however, are the pages of the book—pages filled with pictures of happy, wholesome girls and boys.

In every school the majority of students are mannerly, respectful, and morally sound; but it seems to me that we have more than the average number of boys and girls whose attitudes are good, whose actions are discreet, and whose countenances reflect clean living. I salute the parents of our students for the excellent home training which they are giving their children. Many of our teachers are parents, and even those who are not parents are intensely interested in the proper physical, mental and moral development of our boys and girls.

The school never can take the place of the home, but any student who has both good parents and good teachers is extremely fortunate.

My highest tribute goes to the boy or girl who, despite the tragic loss of one or both parents, maintains a good record of performance and a cooperative attitude toward his associates. As compensation for the lack of parental companionship I highly recommend the cultivation of a closer friendship with teachers.

This Pioneer interests me, too, because it is the first one of which I have been a part. My first year in Garfield Heights has been a very busy one; but I have enjoyed working with you; and as we learn to know each other better, we shall accomplish more and more for the good of our school and our community.

Cordially,
O. H. SCHAAF

Class Prophecy, June, 1948

"Good evening, Mr. & Mrs. Moon, let's go to Press. Flash! Today for the first time EARTH was sighted through the new Strato-televisor. Previously only such neighboring planets as Venus and Mars were able to be seen. But now Dr. Fueglein, the inventor, has added the new bifocal lens which can cover greater distances.

"The doctor, formerly an Earthling, chose to observe the doings of his former classmates, whom he has not seen for twenty years.

"For the benefit of any former Earthlings now residing on the Moon, we will read his report:

'Garfield Hts., my old home town, was the first spot on earth that I was able to see. Manipulating the dials, the familiar sight of old Garfield High came into view, and as I peered into the auditorium I found myself witnessing the first assembly of the school year. As the new teachers were introduced I noticed a few changes in the faculty. The Girls Physical Education department had taken on a new staff. Jean Linke was directing the Senior High, while the Junior High was led by La Verne Manke.

'Heading the Math department was Terry Szelagowski, and who should be the new Latin teacher but Jean Neilson. There were also some changes in the school's secretarial staff. Agnes Jones, Rose Marie Berka, and Alice Wolnoski were efficiently transacting the school's business in the General Office.

'As I left the school the radar equipment on my televisor began to vibrate strangely. Turning up the volume of the sound amplifier, the 1, 2, 3, 4 of football calisthenics reached my ears. Reversing my direction I spied, in the midst of all this activity, a well-known figure. It was Len Zahuranec, now head coach of the Garfield eleven. However, my attention was distracted from the football field by the cheering of people. Looking toward the origin of the sound, I found it was Ed Warren campaigning for election to the office of Mayor of Garfield Hts. with a huge rally, band and a parade. On the platform beside him sat the political boss of Cleveland, Ernst ("Governor") Bicker. Certain that with such strong backing Warren was sure to win, I left the rally.

'Moving down Turney Road I came upon the main shopping center of Garfield, which was slightly changed. In place of the old familiar establishments, bright, new names had sprung up. The sign "K & H Haberdashers" caught my eye. Following one of the customers, whom I recognized as Camille Haas, now happily married, I entered the shop and found Jack Koerner trying to interest Bill St. John in a loud hand-painted tie, while his partner Don Hertrick was busily waiting on Donna Hart, now a Mrs.

'Looking out the window I saw Ruth Grove trying to cross the busy street. Suddenly a cherry coke convertible loomed seemingly out of nowhere. Narrowly missing Ruth and skidding to a jerky stop, the occupants jumped out excitedly. It was Libbie Paul, still trying to shift into third correctly, and Evelyn Skura, who had kindly given Libbie the use of her car.

'Not more than slightly shaken up, Ruth continued on her way. Her destination appeared to be Renski's Bowl. That name seemed to strike a bell in my memory, so I followed Ruth up the stairs and into the room. To my surprise I discovered Janice Renski, making a neat little living, running her own bowling alley. The place seemed to be popular among my old friends, for there I found Eugene Spreitzer, Henry Schlaeppi, and John Hilbert, founders of the new municipal transportation system, the Rapid Rocket.

'Curious as to the appearance of this novel vehicle, I left Renski's Bowl behind me and set out to find a Rocket stop. Noticing a crowd of people standing on the corner of Turney and Garfield Blvd. I gathered that it would be one of the main stops of the Rocket. Among the group were several familiar faces. Elsie Skrl, Virginia Spagnola, and Donna Doelfs, who were on their way to their secretarial jobs in downtown Cleveland, were excitedly discussing the coming marriage of one of their old school mates, Sophie Morinek, to the President of the U. S.

'Soon the Rocket arrived and following the passengers aboard, I glanced at the driver who was none other than Don Corlett. As the Rocket gained momentum I was amazed at the swiftness and smoothness of the ship. It was apparent, however, that the other passengers were quite accustomed to it.

'In two minutes we had arrived at the industrial center of Cleveland. Leaving the Rocket I followed Bob Orth into the main office of Orth and Bacha, producers of the new "Jet-Heliorocter," a midget automobile which could attain a speed of 1,000 mph.

'This growing concern provided employment for many skilled mechanics such as Harold Flick and Ed Grazak two former classmates. As Orth entered the office of his partner I noticed Fern Kral going through the files, while Marjorie Drenski was busily typing out invoices.

'There were three men in the office waiting for Bob. One I recognized to be Ed Bacha, and as Orth turned to greet the others I realized that they were my old friends Al Toth, now the Toothpick King of the nation, and Bob Howe, who had recently won a few million dollars in a sweepstake lottery. From their conversation I gathered that the purpose of the meeting was to form a new corporation, which would produce an improved model of the Heliorocter on a national scale.

'However, the discussion was interrupted by the late arrival of Jim Martin, who had the distinction of being known as the richest man in the state.

'The group being completed, they set out on a tour of the plant. As they wandered about I followed with the aid of my televisor when suddenly I was astonished by the sight of a pair of long legs protruding from beneath a midget automobile. When the owner slowly crawled out to find a needed tool I discovered they belonged to Rob Roy Sherer, the chief mechanic of the department, and as I moved into the drafting room I saw Paul Runyan bent over a drafting board poring over a blueprint.

'As there was nothing of further interest to me at the plant I toyed with the dials on my instrument panel and focused the televisor on the criminal courts of Cleveland. Immediately I found myself in the tense atmosphere of a court room. The people vs. John Doe!

'Had I heard right? Could the John Doe of my school days actually have murdered Paul Senyak, the prominent playwright? According to District Attorney Jack Boys, he had. But on the other hand attorney for the defense Mike Pisarski claimed he had not. In his introductory address to the jury, Jack Boys claimed that Doe had deliberately and with intent to kill started a brawl in a well-known night club, the Black Pearl, and under cover of this distraction had maliciously stabbed Senyak to death.

'His first three witnesses, Tom Lynch, Dan Mastropieri, and Jerry Martin, owners of the Black Pearl, established the presence of Doe in the club on the fatal night. Paul Wallace, the club's professional bouncer, testified that on that night he had been compelled to escort Doe to the door for creating a disturbance. The next witness Miss Bette Madal, a dancer in the floor show, thought she had seen the glint of a knife in John's hand, but on cross examination, broke down and had to confess she could not be sure. The medical examiner, George Kinkopf, determined the cause of death to be a knife wound in the chest, piercing the heart; and estimated the time of death to be 1 a. m. Patrolman Ed Anderzak, stated that he had caught the defendent trying to escape after the murder had been discovered. Motive was established by Tom Austin, a young millionaire, in whose presence Doe had threatened Senyak. Doe had borrowed a large sum of money from Senyak, and being in financial difficulties could not meet the payment on the day it was due, thus forfeiting his home.

'Things seemed pretty black, but the attorney for the defense stepped forward and confidently called his first witness, Don Melena, a successful businessman. Melena, a close friend of Doe's, stated that having known him all his life he was sure he could not have committed such a crime. He established the defendant's character to be that of a law abiding citizen, a family man looked up to in his community, who loved his home and children. How could such a man murder a fellow human being? The second witness for the defense, Richard Schneider, Doe's employer, claimed he had met Doe in the Black Pearl that night to discuss a business trip the two were to make the following weekend. Jed Grossman, an eyewitness, testified that two drunks had attacked the defendent, starting a fight, which resulted in his being asked to leave.

'Then Doe himself was called to the stand. The jury leaned forward eagerly to hear the story from the lips of the accused. Admitting he had been trying to escape for fear he might be suspected of the crime, he again declared his innocence and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

'Judge Don Neradil instructed the jury on the law in this case and they retired to seek a verdict. As they filed out of the room I noticed they were a good cross section of the city's population, and somewhat familiar to me. I recognized Bessie Albano, now a school teacher, Richard Plent, a successful business man, Jessie Stemple, a young housewife, Gladys Price, a secretary and acting as foreman was Al Luzius, an electrical engineer.

'Returning to the courtroom the jury delivered its verdict, NOT GUILTY, and leaving amid the rejoicing of the friends and family of the accused, I focused my televisor on Cleveland's coast to coast network, Station BLA, owned by Al Sluka.

'Entering Studio A, I found myself in the midst of a "People Are Shmoes" program. As the orchestra struck the first notes of the opening theme, I discovered that it was my old friend Len Gutkowski waving that baton, while his featured soloist on the trumpet was Ed Pientowski. Beating out the rhythm of the swing selection was Joe Svoboda on the drums, and Don Nemec was playing it hot and sweet on that clarinet of his.

'After announcer Don Ris had delivered his commercial, Frank Gladden, the smiling master of ceremonies, took over the program. The first contestant was Bill Prebel, a visiting chief from the Smohawk tribe. Among the other contestants I also recognized Bob Schmitt, inside man in the Skonck Works, Joe Manely, a mattress tester, and Henry Pieronek, a peanut counter in a peanut factory.

'As I passed Studio B, I saw Bruce Walton being Queen for a Day. Opening the door to Studio C, I came upon Al May giving Cleveland listeners his sports review of the year. Local boy Tom Lang was now the new heavy-weight champion of the world. And three other home-town boys Mike Ichrist, Bob Reichart, and Frank Piwarski, the snappy little trio from the Cleveland Indians, had recently been chosen the three most valuable players of the year.

'The Cleveland Browns were playing with a slight handicap due to the loss of Captain Jim Maras for the rest of the season. When consulted, the Brown's official nurse Mary Jane Guzowski stated, that although his broken leg was mending nicely, it was still not strong enough to permit Maras to play until next season.

'The second half of the program was devoted to a televised interview of Jim White, the famous sportswriter. Changing the position of the cameras was Jim Soucek, now a television engineer, while in the control room radio engineer Dave Huebscher was repairing an intricate panel of switches.

'I moved the dials on my televisor once more, and Cleveland Municipal Airport came into view just in time for me to witness a smooth three-point landing by pilot Bob Miller. Stepping out of his United Airlines Rocket, he turned to greet Airline Hostess Joyce Cytlak, who was checking over her list of passengers. Among these were several of her classmates. Ruth Pfaff, returning to her home in Hawaii, Ruth Chaloupka, starting on the first part of her journey to the salt mines of Siberia, and Angelo Di Matteo, now on his third trip around the world. A now portly Pat Miller was having some difficulty in meeting the weight limits, while Mary Davis, because of her extreme height, found it difficult to adjust herself to the small seats.

'Nearby a Jet Airliner was warming up for its flight to New York. Inside Stewardess Katie Brovarney, looking trim and neat in her grey uniform, was fastening the safety belts, while Pilot Dolores Walsky gunned the motors for the take-off. The passengers were also familiar to me. Alice Marousek, on vacation from her job as a telephone operator, Mary Turner, on her way to be married to an Admiral, Alice Pearson, returning to her position as teacher in Brooklyn Elementary, and Lois Provenzano, now well known for her important work in social welfare.

'In less than 15 minutes we had arrived in the commercial capital of the world, New York. Turning my televisor I immediately found myself looking into the expensive shops of Fifth Avenue. Here was "Mara's," where the best dressed women of the nation obtained their exclusive gowns by Madame Shirley. Further down was the famous Catalano's Spaghetti House, where the customers were always made to feel as if they were personal friends of Jack. It was also here that Mary Parasiliti had her beauty salon, which specialized in creating new hair styles for the Broadway shows. Her chief operator and assistant was Marilyn Weber, one of the best beauticians in the business.

'As I passed a side walk newsstand, I recognized a familiar face on the cover of one of the national fashion magazines. It was Audrey Tosko, now a cover girl very much in demand. She was wearing a new creation by the successful fashion designer, Henrietta Jarzembowski, which threatened to revolutionize styles completely.

'Crossing the busy intersection I came upon "Bury Me" Bauer's Undertaking establishment. Upon entering I found Clarence himself, very distinguished looking in his black tie and tails, busily greeting the friends and family of one of his charges. The soft sweet tones of a harp reached my ears, and glancing in that direction I saw Florence Jones playing the grand old hymns loved so dearly by the deceased. The beautiful wreaths and sprays next caught my interest, and looking at one of the name cards I discovered they had been supplied by Alice Glasko's Floral Shop. Among the gathering of mourners I noticed four familiar faces. Bob Addis, now a singing waiter, Margaret Whitty, a reporter for the "Daily Gab," Leonard Monaco, a traveling salesman, and Ruth Nemeth, a professional hostess.

Class Prophecy, June, 1948—concluded

'There seemed no need for me to remain so I left and followed a well dressed young woman who was Felicia Podwojski, a fashion illustrator, into the offices of Rembrandt Inc., Commercial Artists. There I found a beautiful Barbara Smith posing for Richard Palivac in a sleek black satin gown, while Evelyn Deal, attired in ski togs, was being photographed by John Marx. Bending over her sketch of a perfect hand for an engagement ring advertisement was Nina Jablonski and in his back room laboratory Richard Wells was blending various color combinations to find a new shade of blue.

'In the same building Franklyne Ross had the main office of his printing concern. As I looked in on him I found him engrossed in developing a new kind of business card for Rosemary Caranci and her new dress shop.

'Leaving Fifth Avenue I started down Broadway. The bright lights of a theatre marque caught my attention. "George Nolan presents — — — Genevieve Schmitt and James Sweeney in — — — The Robot's Revenge." Another smash hit to add to his successes. As the crowds pushed forward Special Officer Ralph Jarmusch had great difficulty maintaining order. The arrival of many celebrities caused more disturbances. Mary Ann Cerny, up and coming young radio starlet, was almost trampled by eager autograph hounds, while Shirley Snyder, world famous roller skater, was badly mauled.

'Suddenly the high wail of an ambulance siren reached my ears. Being an incurable ambulance chaser I focused the televisor on the source of the sound. A well known businessman, Mr. MacKillem, had been stricken with the dread disease Leprotetecan. Until recently there had been no known cure but due to the work of Tom Cassidy, a research scientist, and his medical assistant Geraldine Maryanski, a new serum had been discovered. Therefore, he was being rushed to the hospital for treatment. As the ambulance sped through the busy streets I found that the hand on the wheel belonged to Ed Basta.

'Arriving at the hospital I followed the stretcher bearing Mr. MacKillem into the emergency receiving room, where Nurse Eleanor Kenski took down the necessary information required of all patients. Since the disease had centered on the foot of the patient, Dr. Richard Tephenhart, the noted foot specialist, was summoned to make the examination. He decided that before treatment could be started, surgery would be needed to remove the large fever boil which had accompanied the disease. As Nurse Rita Flaum prepared the patient for surgery, Nurse Ann Kraus sterilized the instruments in readiness for the operation.

'Leaving Mr. MacKillem in the capable hands of the operating surgeon, Jeanine Rolfs, and her surgical nurse, Dorothy Repko, I wandered with the aid of my televisor through the hospital. The crowded office of Dr. Cleo Harris, child psychologist, seemed too much for just one small woman to handle, but things appeared to be well under control. Peering into some of the other rooms I came upon Jack Kehoe propped up in bed with a few broken bones obtained while racing around the world on his motorcycle. Amusing him by reading aloud was Nurse Helen Chahulski.

'The next room was occupied by Joe Leuzzi, a veteran of the Foreign Wars, who through constant endeavor had remained a bachelor. His nurse, Nancy Earl, was efficiently taking his temperature and counting his pulse. Across the hall in a swank private room was Wall Street Banker, Dominic Peterre. Diana Markley, his private nurse, was constantly kept busy arranging the bouquets of flowers which were continually arriving.

'The baskets of ripe fruit on the bed table reminded me of the orchards and orange groves of the Western coast. As I had always wished to see sunny California, I twirled a dial and soon I was looking down on an outdoor sports arcade. In the pool a swimming class was in session. Instructor Margot Enzmen was expertly demonstrating the Australian crawl to her eager pupils Evelyn Mack, Sarah Love, and Darlene Sakmar, three young movie starlets. Physical Culture instructor, Shirley Bingham, was assisting prospective young acrobats in the art of flip-twisting in mid-air.

'Just then quite by accident my elbow hit a dial on my instrument panel and I suddenly found myself in darkest Africa. The wild rhythmic beating of a drum announcing a voodoo meeting of black magic reached my ears. Following the sound I came upon a huge cauldron about which were gathered a group of hideous natives. As the grotesquely painted Witch-Doctor stepped forward to begin the ceremony, I saw it was Joan Franks, who always HAD dreamed of being a doctor.

'The dancers began their frantic dance of death and as they reached the fever pitch of frenzied motion, a second figure appeared. It was the voodoo priestess Edith Brown. As she raised her arms in prayer, a low moaning came from the natives. The chant grew louder and shriller. Suddenly the priestess dropped her arms, which was the signal for the fire beneath the cauldron to be lighted. One of the dancers gracefully leaped through the air with a burning torch and as she knelt to ignite the logs, I discovered that it was Beverly Wilkes.

'It was not until then that I noticed the man bound securely in the pot. As the flames leaped higher and hotter, he gave an agonized scream that chilled my bones. Then I knew. It was Wild Bill Barnick, the famous adventurer-explorer, who had finally been captured by the natives. Suddenly there was an interruption. Two men, dressed in the gray uniform of the U. S. postman, staggered wearily into the center of the group. It was Norman and Kenneth Fowle, who had journeyed all over the world to deliver a telegram to Wild Bill. As he opened the tattered envelope I glanced swiftly at the contents. Six words plainly written said: "Greetings, You have just been drafted."

'At that moment my televisor seemed to act strangely and slowly the earth faded from view. Upon examination I found that one of my radar tubes had burned out, but I was satisfied, for now I had again seen all my old classmates.'

"And that concludes Dr. Fueglein's report. So with lotions of love, I remain your New Moon correspondent, Victor Pikus."

The Garfield Mirror, now in its twenty-first year of publication, is still maintaining the high standards set in previous years.

A journalism class, composed of eleventh and twelfth grade students, has been added to the school curriculum this year. It is the purpose of the journalism class to acquaint hopeful news-writers with the technicalities of journalism. Students in this class are in charge of writing, typing, proofreading and distribution of the Mirror. Miss Gene Mennell, who is new to our school this year, is the teacher of journalism.

Local advertising merchants and the collection of tax stamps help to finance photos and mailing expenses.

As a member of the National Scholastic Press Association the Mirror is now published bi-monthly. Miss Mennell and Mr. Philip B. White are the Faculty advisors.

Sports Summary 1947-48 Seasons

1947 BASEBALL

A powerful and fast running baseball team of Garfield Hi ended its season with many records established. There was the 24-5 win over Brush, with 12 runs in one inning, and then there was Ron Sineway's one hitter against Euclid Shore 3-0. Red Ponchock struck out 17 men in two different games, while his great hitting sparked the team to many victories. The Bulldogs finished the season in second place in the Conference race, and lost only two games in league play and one independent contest.

1947 FOOTBALL

Coach Jack Wilson announced before the season of grid play began that this might be his last season, but there was nothing official. Anyway, our boys went out and after taking a beating by Parma, they turned around and won seven of eight remaining games. Second place in the League race was filled by Garfield.

Probably the best game was the homecoming contest against Euclid Central. The Lions were a much heavier and faster team, according to the experts, but the 32-12 lacing our team handed them proved quite the contrary. Coach Wilson resigned in mid-season to take over the Clerk-Treasurer position, and Ed Chase filled his vacated spot and led our Blue and Gold to their last three conference victories.

1947-48 BASKETBALL SEASON

Carl McColloch, the new basketball coach, experienced the misfortune of having to lose his first two basketball games by the heartbreaking scores of 28-26 to South Hi, and 36-32 to John Adams. Our team fought like mad, but just couldn't make it. Shore beat us on our own floor 51-38, and then we went to University School to have the Preppers come back in the final period to win 35-30.

Our first victory was at Maple Heights, and what a victory it was for us! We never played such a game as we did that night and we won easily 43-20. Our old jinx the Alumni beat us 58-45 and then Euclid Central, with a bit of luck, toppled us 45-40 on our own floor.

Then with four players scoring over ten points, the Bulldogs notched their second win in Conference play by drubbing Brush on the Arcs' floor 56-50. Lenny Barcikowski rang up 19, Slim Petrancek 13, Bob McVoy 11, and Eddie Fulkerson 10 points in a wild scoring affair, which gave our boys a chance for a high spot in the Conference race. The hardwood team was one of the best in years, even if we did run into the tough luck and our old jinx's. This year's team and next will certainly be powerful and should break all kinds of scoring records.

1947-48 WRESTLING

Wrestling came back into the limelight after a few seasons of poorer teams. With the two beginning wins over John Hay 25-23, and Benedictine 38-8, our school spirit for the matmen became high.

Despite three straight losses to powerful teams such as West Tech, Shaker Heights and John Marshall, our boys kept on fighting. Captain Frankie Gladden had one of the best individual records in the history of the school, besides having a top one in the district. Pete Bodnarik proved to be a consistent winner, while the team as a whole showed that fight that a winning team has to have for victory.

Baseball

BASEBALL 1947

Garfield's baseball team of 1947 won seven and lost three games and concluded their season by finishing in second place. Only one game separated the Bulldogs and the champion Euclid Central Lions. Opening their season with a record breaking 24-5 win over Brush, the blue and gold established several school records. 12 runs, nine hits all came in the big sixth inning. Red Ponchock, Bob Reichart, Don Vavruska, and Gene Cianciola collected 15 of the 24 hits that game. An unusual hit won a two hitter for Ponchock in the 4-3 win over Maple Heights, and that hit was by Ray Grazak and was the only Garfield hit of the afternoon.

Ron Sineway hurled a one hitter over Euclid Shore, who were the defending champions, and Red Ponchock whiffed 17 batters in one game two different times. Spectacular catches and double plays won several games, while a little bit of bad luck lost the only games our nine lost all season. It was the best season the Bulldogs had since 1937.

FOOTBALL 1948

Sensational passing by Quarterback Bob McVoy, great line play by Vic Pikus, Don Hertrick, Jim Maras, Jack Catalano, and Tom Austin, plus the running of our backfield men, Bob Reichart, Joe Stankiewicz, and Don Vavruska led the Garfield Bulldogs 1947 Football team to a most successful season. The Blue and Gold completed their season with a 7-2 record and finished in the runner-up spot in the Eastern Conference.

A round robin exhibition for the benefit of the Conference injury fund was played on September 5, to launch the 1947 campaign. Garfield drew Maple Heights and Euclid Central as their two six minute opponents, and tied the Maple Heights eleven 0-0, and lost to Euclid Central 6-0.

Parma gave the Bulldogs a 24-0 trouncing in their opener, but the Blue and Gold whirled back to beat Painesville 9-0. Don Vavruska ran for four scores as the home boys downed Willoughby 36-19. Euclid Shore then licked us 45-0, but we came back with a 19-7 triumph over Maple Heights.

A passing duel between McVoy and Don Pokorny of Euclid Central turned into a one sided affair and the Bulldogs romped over the Lions 32-12 in our homecoming game.

Great running of Stankiewicz, Reichart and Vavruska led the vastly improving team to a 19-6 win over Brush and then to a 21-6 scuttle of Bedford. Closing the season which almost started to be disastrous, the locals skinned Berea 19-6. Bob Reichart was nominated the most valuable player.

Football Queen

Luck to a wonderful season— We miss you— Jean.

Our Queen

This year a pretty blue-eyed miss by the name of Jean Linke reigned as Football Queen at the annual Homecoming game at G.H.H.S. She was chosen by the student body.

Jean has been a member of the high school since the seventh grade, previously attending Garfield Elementary. During this time of high school life she has been very active in extra curricular activities.

In her senior year she was head of the girls basketball program and social chairman for the Y-teen Club. As an outstanding member of the G.A.A. she has earned her 1700 points, and through her athletic ability added a great deal to the Tumbling Meet this year.

Last and by no means least she has fulfilled her duty as a Garfield Heights cheerleader more than once. Starting her cheering career in her sophomore year Jean has reached her peak by presiding as captain of the squad this season.

Good Luck to Our Queen and may she continue her queenly ways beyond the doors of G.H.H.S.

Printing is vital to business success

As you enter the commercial or professional world from Garfield Heights High, business school or college, you will find the printed word essential in countless ways to the conduct of manufacture, service or trade.

Our firm, which produced this yearbook, is one of the outstanding printers of Greater Cleveland and has helped its professional and industrial leaders to success for more than forty years.

The Associate Yearbook Staff is composed of three freshmen, three sophomores, and four juniors, who are selected on a basis of interest, aptitude, and willingness to work. This year's Associate Staff has helped a great deal toward the construction of the 1948 Pioneer. In so doing the Associate Staff helped create a better yearbook. However, the true purpose of the Associate Staff is to gain knowledge of the details of the construction, financing, and writing of a yearbook. This knowledge will help them and future yearbooks with which they may be associated.

A GIRL CAN BE PROUD

...when she earns her high school diploma

And she should be proud when she takes her place as a wage-earner.

"Telephone Girl" is a proud title in business . . . whether it's operator, stenographer or clerk. The telephone girl does interesting, useful work which is important to everybody.

She can take pride in her paycheck which grows steadily, adding six raises the first 18 months. She can be proud of her business home and the friendly girls with whom she works. Thorough training gives her confidence and good performance earns her promotion.

YOU, too, can be pleased and proud with a telephone job.

COMPLIMENTS OF THE

Girls' Athletic Association

The Girls' Athletic Association of Garfield Heights High is one of the school's largest and most active clubs. This year it has a membership of one hundred sixty girls. The purpose of this organization is to establish better feeling among the girls, to create interests in athletics, and to sponsor athletic activities.

Some of the sports offered by the G. A. A. are speedball, archery, tumbling, basketball, volleyball, badminton, ping pong, and baseball.

The two main events held annually and which are looked forward to with much enthusiasm are the Soccer Supper and the G. A. A. Reunion. Playdays are also held with different schools.

Miss Jean Seidel, Girls' Physical Education Instructor, is advisor of the club.

MAY:

Dramatic-minded students give out with excellent performances in the annual Spring Play on the 7th. . . . Seniors find time on their heavily laden social calendars for Yearbook Night on the 14th. . . . Underclassman become aware of the presence of stately seniors on Senior Recognition Day. . . . Most gala event in the school year is held on the 22nd when Juniors host the Seniors to their last prom at the Allerton Hotel.

JUNE:

The evening of the 2nd Seniors have their final fling as members of the high school, when they hold their dinner-dance. . . . At last! The day all seniors have eagerly anticipated has finally arrived. . . . Graduation! . . . And as we march down the aisles to the traditional War March of the Priests to receive our diplomas we are all proud, and a little sad. For we are now numbered among the alumni of Garfield Heights High. . . . We are proud to hail her as our Alma Mater.

Pioneer History

Since 1929 when the "Pioneer" was first introduced into Garfield Heights High School, it has been one of the largest projects undertaken each year by the school. Due to the endless efforts of the staffs and advisor, who push advertising campaigns and the like, each year has produced a bigger and better book.

The first "Pioneer," which consisted of the pictures of the 45 graduating students and the class history, in comparison to our present day yearbooks, which include pictures of clubs, school activities, faculty advisors, and all school write ups, reveals the great improvement achieved with the passing years.

The "Pioneer" is a valuable possession of every graduate, for it helps to keep alive memories of happy school days in Garfield High.

Yearbook Sports Glances . . .

. . . Did you know that Garfield scored 24 touchdowns during the 1947 football season? . . . That Bob Reichart, and Don Vavruska scored 15 touchdowns between them. . . . Did you realize that Bob McVoy, the Bulldogs quarterback, completed 53 out of 99 passes and 10 were complete for touchdowns, of which Don Corlett caught four. . . . Vic Pikus became the first Garfield tackle in over five seasons to score a point, and that was a safety in the Painesville game our Blue and Gold won 9-0. . . .

. . . Did you realize that a Garfield basketball team has failed to beat South High School in fifteen games. . . . That Frank Petrancek scored 200 points in 11 contests, including the tournament game for an average of 18.1 per game. . . . His highest for the season was against Maple Heights in the home-coming game when he came within five points of breaking the school record by sinking 31. . . . He was withdrawn from the game near the end. . . . Did you know that Ed Fulkerson scored 197 markers in 17 games and led the Eastern Conference in scoring during the regular season. . . . Did you know that Ed Fulkerson, and Frank Petrancek won places on coaches, and newspapers All-Eastern Conference hard-wood team. . . .

. . . Did you know that Garfield's wrestlers had their best season in four years with a 4-7-1 record. . . . Pete Bodnarik was the leading wrestler with 11 victories in 12 matches. . . . His only loss was to John Marshall. . . . Captain Frankie Gladden who wrestled only seven times and won five, and tied one. . . . He had to retire early in the season due to a severe nose injury. . . . Did you know that if Butch Jarmusch had wrestled in his regular weight, instead of a higher one, he would have been another top notch wrestler. . . . Ray Tarnowski, Bill Coopy, John Kachinke, Ed Rosa, Hal Schlegel all are only sophomores and will have two more seasons of wrestling left. . . .

. . . Garfield's football team will play four night games this next season, at Willoughby, Euclid Central, Bedford, and Maple Heights. . . . Garfield will be the only Eastern Conference school without lights on their athletic field, after Maple Heights installs them this fall. . . . Euclid Central and Euclid Shore both play on Shore Stadium. . . .
